Siemens Home Appliances

Less is the new more.

Discover inspiring technology that balances environmental friendliness and quality of life.

What sustainability means for Siemens Home Appliances.

We are convinced that an environmentally friendly lifestyle is possible without sacrificing comfort and performance. In order to preserve natural resources, we develop sustainable innovations and technology with long-lasting elegant design. We aim to minimize the environmental impact of our products from production to usage and re-usage by taking the Circular Economy as role model. So that you can enjoy today in a sustainable way.

Siemens home appliances: Designed to last.

Instead of chasing fast moving trends, we consciously focus on long-lasting elegance and quality. You will therefore enjoy the clear architectural design language of a Siemens home appliance for a long time. Because we use only the highest quality materials, you will see no reason to replace it prematurely.

Recovering, recycling and reusing.

Our durable appliances are designed to be as environmentally friendly as possible, even beyond their lifespan. Your old appliances still contain precious materials that can be recovered and reused – maybe even for your next product. That way we can avoid waste and save resources together.

When power meets intelligence for highest efficiency.

Home appliances by Siemens are developed to use natural resources as economically as possible. Thanks to our engineering excellence, we developed a combination of intelligent software and a network of sensors to automatically detect, evaluate and regulate key factors related to operation of your home appliance iSensoric. It manages each appliance precisely to use resources such as power and water as efficiently as possible.
